

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus for installing device drivers for driving peripherals, including obtaining peripheral identification information from a peripheral, synthesizing a basic address of a site providing a device driver and peripheral identification information of the peripheral, and when the combined address is accessed, retrieving the device driver provided from the combined address and installing the retrieved device driver in the host and/or peripheral.